4. The Faculty met to consider the recent appointment of Dr. Mahendralal Sircar to the Faculty of Medicine.

The following resolution was carried unanimously:—

In consequence of the addition of Dr. Mahendralal Sircar's name to the Faculty of Medicine by a resolution of the Senate passed at their meeting on the 27th April, the Faculty regret exceedingly that they are compelled to point out to the Syndicate that they are unable to associate themselves as a Faculty of Medicine with a member who professes and practises Homœopathy, an inability of which probably the Senate were not aware when the nomination was made; they trust, therefore, that the Syndicate may be able to remove the present difficulty by the transfer of Dr. Mahendralal Sircar's name to another Faculty, or in some other manner.

TER.

MR. ANANDA MOHAN BOSH.

DR. T. E. CHARLES.

THE HON'BLE J. O'KINEALY.

MR. T. S. ISAAC.

5. Read a letter from Dr. K. McLeod, Examiner in Surgery at the last Medical Examination, in reply to a letter of the Registrar asking him to forward Jadunath Mukhopadhyay's paper, together with the Medical Treatise from which he copied, and to point out the passages taken by him from the book.

RESOLVED—

That Jadunath Mukhopadhyay be excluded from all the examinations of the University for two years.

6. Read a letter from the Acting Principal, Trinity College, Kandy, praying that the college be affiliated up to the B. A. Standard, and enclosing a letter from the Secretary of the Church Missionary Society, containing an assurance that the college has the means of educating up to the B. A. standard, and showing the provision made for the purpose.

RESOLVED—

That an application be made to the Government of India, recommending the Governor General in Council to sanction the affiliation of Trinity College, Kandy, up to the standard of the B. A. Degree, with effect from the 1st of January 1878.

7. Read the following letter addressed to the Syndicate by four members of the Faculty of Medicine, and forwarded by Dr. D. D. Cunningham :—

“It is currently rumoured in Calcutta that the recent examinations for the Licence of L. M. S. and the Degree of M. B. were conducted in a somewhat irregular manner. The rules laid down by the Syndicate for the conduct of these examinations having been to some extent contravened.”

“We do not consider it creditable to the University, and especially so to the Faculty to which we belong, that such a rumour should be current. We have as individuals no means of obtaining such authentic information regarding the conduct of the examinations as would enable us to contradict the rumour if it be untrue. We think, however, that the matter is one which ought not to be passed over without notice, and we therefore take the liberty of suggesting to the President and Members of the Syndicate that it would be for the interest of the University if they were to enquire into it, and, by calling for the marks in the written and oral examinations in each subject of all the candidates at the late examination, together with a statement at the method by which these marks were arrived at, to satisfy themselves whether or not the University Regulations have been observed.”

That the following reply be sent by the Registrar :—

I am directed by the Vice-Chancellor and Syndicate to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated the 24th April 1878, and in reply to inform you that there does not appear to have been any irregularity in the late medical examinations, as no candidate was passed without the consent of the Board of Examiners.

There appears, however, to be some uncertainty in this as in other examinations as to the precise amount of marks which may be allowed to a candidate who fails in one subject, and does well in all the others.

I am directed to state that this point is now under the consideration of the Syndicate, with a view to laying down rules for the conduct of future examinations.

8. Read the proceedings of the Faculty of Medicine at their meeting on the 15th of May.

RESOLVED—

That the consideration of the questions which arise out of the proceedings be deferred to the next meeting of the Syndicate.

23. The Senate met by the recommendation of the Syndicate to re-consider the appointment of Dr. Mahendralal Sircar to the Faculty of Medicine.

The Vice-Chancellor, with the permission of the Senate, read the following letter which Dr. Mahendralal Sircar had addressed to the Registrar on the question now before the Senate:—

"I have the honor to request you will be pleased to do me the favor to lay before the Senate at their meeting this evening, the following observations relative to the object for which the meeting has been called :

“ The Senate did me the honor to appoint me a member of the Faculty of Medicine by a resolution, carried nem. con., at their meeting held on the 27th April last. Scarcely two months and a half have elapsed when they are invited by the Syndicate to re-consider that resolution. The Syndicate do not give any reason for their proposition, and, I presume, they have done so at the instance of the Faculty of Medicine, who met on the 15th May last and passed the following resolution unanimously :—

“ My profession and practice of homœopathy have been no secret. I first openly and publicly declared my faith in homœopathy at the 4th annual meeting of the Bengal Branch of the British Medical Association held on the 16th February 1867. I started a monthly journal, under the title of the Calcutta Journal of Medicine, in January 1868. The Journal exists, and I have been giving out my opinions and views on medicine in its pages month after month since its commencement. Neither, therefore, the Viceroy and Governor General who did me the honor to appoint me a Fellow of the Calcutta University, nor the University who did me the honor, eight years after that appointment, to elect me a member of their Faculty of Medicine, could have been unaware of my medical creed. Whether they were unaware of the ‘inability’ therein involved, the honorable members of the Senate can only say.

“ The Faculty object to my profession and practice of homœopathy. As men of science they should have been more accurate in their language, especially when they sat to condemn a professional brother. They should have stated clearly if they objected in toto and absolutely to any profession and practice of homœopathy, or if they objected to its profession and practice beyond a certain extent. They should not have rested satisfied with stating their objection qualitatively only, but they should have stated it quantitatively also.

“ That I am not making a frivolous and hair-splitting distinction would be obvious on the slightest consideration. If the Faculty of Medicine object unqualifiedly and absolutely to any profession and practice of homœopathy, irrespective of the quality and quantity of that profession and practice, then they should object in the same unqualified and absolute manner to the teachings of the great father of medicine himself; for Hippocrates laid it down that 'diseases are sometimes cured by contraries, sometimes by similars, and sometimes by medicines which have neither similitude nor antagonism.'

"And then what would they have said to Hufeland, the leader of the profession in his day,—Hufeland, who, while utterly rejecting homœopathy 'as the universal principle of the whole art of medicine,' and believing that 'as such, in its first crude form, it would be the grave of science and of humanity too,' had the candour and the courage to say that 'homœopathy is worthy of consideration and is not to be rejected, but to be made use of as a peculiar method of treatment, subsidiary to the higher principles of rational medicine';—Hufeland, who laid it down as the conclusions to which he had arrived after an impartial investigation: 'No homœopathy, but yet a homœopathic method in rational physic. No homœopathists, but yet rational physicians who make use of the homœopathic method in the right place and in the right way.'

"And what would they have said to Liston, who, after actual trials of some homœopathic medicines, said:

"'I believe in the homœopathic doctrines to a certain extent, but I cannot as yet, from inexperience on the subject, go the lengths its advocates would wish, in as far as regards the very minute doses of some of their medicines. The medicines in the above cases were certainly given in much smaller doses than have ever hitherto been prescribed. The beneficial effects, as you witnessed, are unquestionable. I have, however, seen similar good effects of the belladonna, prepared according to the Homœopathic Pharmacopœia, in a case of very severe erysipelas of the head and face, under the care of my friend, Dr. QUIN. The inflammatory symptoms and local signs disappeared with very great rapidity. Without adopting the theory of this medical sect, you ought not to reject its doctrines without due examination and inquiry.'

"Would they question the orthodoxy of Dr. Lauder Brunton, Editor of the Practitioner, because he has not hesitated to admit in the last May number of that journal a long article on the 'Laws of Therapeutics' from the pen of Dr. William Sharp, M.D., F.R.S., a veteran homœopath, and 'one of the ablest living exponents of the opinions he holds,' as Dr. Brunton justly calls him. Dr. Brunton has admitted this paper because he believes that 'correct conclusions are easily reached by a knowledge of all sides of a subject.' So long ago as August 1876, Dr. Brunton expressed himself as follows on the subject of homœopathy, and yet I do not know that any of the learned members of the Faculty of Medicine of our University has sent a protest to him in respect of his heterodoxy:—

"The opposite action of large and small doses seems to be the basis of truth on which the doctrine of homœopathy has been founded. The irrational practice of giving infinitesimal doses has, of course, nothing to do with the principle of homœopathy—similia similibus curantur—the only requisite is that mentioned by Hippocrates, when he recommended mandrake in mania, viz., that the dose be smaller than would be sufficient to produce in a healthy man symptoms similar to those of the disease. Now in the case of some drugs this may be exactly equivalent to giving a drug which produces symptoms opposite to those of the disease, and when we can readily see the possibility of the morbid changes being counteracted by the action of the drug and benefit resulting from the treatment. For example, large doses of digitalis render the pulse extremely rapid, but moderate ones slow it. In this instance its moderate administration when there is a rapid pulse is homœopathic treatment, and this has sometimes been beneficial. But it is not proved that all drugs have an opposite action in large and small doses, and homœopathy therefore cannot be accepted as an universal rule of practice.—Practitioner, August 1876.

“I assume, therefore, that the Faculty could not have meant, in their recent Resolution, their absolute and unqualified objection to the profession and practice of homœopathy in any degree. For, if they had done so, they should have, for the sake of consistency, disavowed all professional relationship with Hippocrates, Hufeland, Liston, and Dr. Lauder Brunton, which, I believe, they have not done, and which, I believe, they would admit, it would be the greatest ‘professional obliquity’ to do.

“The only other meaning their language is capable of, is that they object to the profession and practice of homœopathy as an absolute system of medicine. If they mean this, then they must also mean that I profess and practise homœopathy as an exclusive and absolute system. And against this I must emphatically protest, as unwarranted by my published writings and daily practice since 1867.

“In my address in medicine read at the 4th annual meeting of the Bengal Branch of the British Medical Association, I distinctly said that Hahnemann was wrong in believing that there was but one law of cure, and no other. ‘Cures are effected in so many divers ways,’ said I, ‘that it must be the most unphilosophical and painful straining of the similia similibus law to say that it pervades them all.’ I went no further than to say: ‘The system, however, has many recommendations, and I deem it worthy of trial. I feel it, therefore, my duty most humbly to urge upon the profession the necessity of recognizing it as one of our therapeutic systems.’

“In the prospectus of the Calcutta Journal of Medicine, which I started in January 1868, I distinctly stated :

“‘The Journal will be conducted on strictly catholic principles.

“‘The object is simply and solely the advancement of medical science, and the diffusion of sound knowledge of the laws and conditions of health.

“‘The similia similibus curantur law and the infinitesimal posology of Hahnemann will be recognized as the most advanced points yet reached in the domain of therapeutics.

“‘Nevertheless, full and fair play will be allowed to all the systems of medicine in vogue in the world, and in fact to whatever can be shewn to have succeeded in effecting a true cure, or at least in affording relief to suffering where established means had failed.’

“I did not give an exclusive name to the Journal, and I adopted as its motto the following sloka from one of our ancient works on medicine, and nothing from Hahnemann or his followers:—

“ तदेव यत्नं भैषज्यं यदारोग्याय कल्पते ।

“ सचैव भिषजांश्रेष्ठो रोगेभ्यो यः प्रमोचयेत् ॥’

चरकसंहिता ।

“ ‘That alone is the right medicine which can remove disease :

“ ‘He alone is the true physician who can restore health.’—

Charaka Sanhitā.

And without exaggeration I may say, it would be difficult to find in the whole range of medical literature, ancient and modern, a passage more philosophical, and more exquisitely appreciative of the real functions of the physician.

“To prevent misunderstanding and all possibility of misunderstanding, I enunciated my medical creed in the opening article of the Journal, as clearly, I believe, as it is possible for human language to render one’s ideas clear. I would humbly ask the learned members of our Medical Faculty if they do not find it catholic in its principles; if, at the same time that it is humiliating to human pride, it is not consolatory and encouraging to acknowledged human finiteness; if it is not calculated to stimulate free inquiry and lead to real progress; and if, on these accounts, it is not worthy of acceptance, not indeed in its letter but in its spirit, by members of a liberal and sacred profession.

“As I have said (Cal. Journ. Med., May 1868), ‘Rightly understood, our creed will be found to be as much a protest against the bigotry of the old as of the new school. It has been intended, in fact, as a protest against the intolerance and prejudice of all the systems of medicine.’ Nay, in the article on ‘Dr. Reith and his Colleagues’ (Cal. Journ. Med., Feb. 1869), I went further and said: ‘And in the present state of medicine, hospitals ought neither to be exclusively allopathic nor exclusively homœopathic. In an allopathic hospital every improvement in therapeutics would be admissible save one. In a purely homœopathic hospital all improvement in therapeutics is shut out save one. If, therefore, the medical officers of an allopathic hospital ought not to be tied down to a particular line of treatment, much less ought the medical officers of a homœopathic one. There is some excuse—the excuse of ignorance—in the one case; there is none in the other. For men who have themselves with much difficulty and at much sacrifice emerged from ignorance, prejudice and bigotry, to bind themselves and to require others to be bound to any system of therapeutics, however superior it may be, as far as the present state of knowledge goes, would be to take the last plunge in the slough of ignorance, prejudice and bigotry, worse than they had emerged from, and never to rise again.'

"In a 'Retrospect' (Cal. Journ. Med., Nov. and Dec. 1869) I pointed out: 'The grand mistake of the new school, while yet in its infancy, was to believe, in the enthusiasm of its first astonishing success with the newly-discovered law of healing, that that was the be all and end all of therapeutics, that the recognition of the other than the vital laws of the organism was next to unnecessary. We are sorry to see the mistake still largely prevails in the school, chiefly among those who call themselves pure Hahnemannians. With them it is a sin to depart from the dicta of the Master uttered in the latter years of his life—a 'sin to give medicines in low dilutions and mother tinctures, a sin to use even the most common and useful auxiliaries, simply because they are used by the old school. This, we must say, is as much bigotry and as mischievous as that which so disgraces the dominant school.'

"In the preface to my 'Sketch of the Treatment of Cholera' I said: 'The human organism is governed by a variety of laws; its disorders therefore are manifold, proceeding from infringement of one or more or all of these laws; and consequently the therapeutics of these disorders must recognize the operation of all these laws. The great difference between the old and the new schools of medicine consists in the one generally ignoring the vital or dynamic laws, and the other the mechanical and the chemical laws, which all combine in maintaining life. This we look upon as a serious and mischievous error; and unless each school will make ample concessions, unless each will condescend to learn from either, we cannot expect their re-union—nay, we cannot expect a perfect therapeutical science; on the contrary, there will be a perpetual war of school against school, of system against system, to the great detriment of the profession and misfortune of the human race.'

"'In the article on 'Hydrate of Chloral' (Cal. Journ. Med., July to December 1870), among other things appeared the following: 'The profession has been long divided against itself, to its own injury and the injury of humanity. It is high time that its members, who pretend to build upon science, should shake off the bigotry and the prejudice so unworthy of scientific men, and which have caused such a lamentable breach among them as to expose them to the ridicule and the scorn of laymen, and to bring unmerited discredit upon the profession itself. It is high time that the ignorant sneer at the infinitesimal, and the nervous dread of the so-called massive dose should cease. As facts are facts and must remain so in spite of opposition, it is high time that both parties, instead of laughing at or contemning each other, should see that facts are not ignored, and should endeavour to account for any that do not come within the groove of their favourite theory. Even the apparent contradictions and inconsistencies should not appall us. We must remember that many such contradictions and inconsistencies have been cleared up by the light of newer facts or unthought-of relationship of older ones. And here we are bound to declare that we can tolerate the prejudice and the bigotry existing on the side of the orthodox party but not on that of the party of reform.'

"I could multiply quotations, but the letter has become already too long, and I would not make it longer. For convenience of reference of my honorable colleagues of the Senate, I have gathered a few extracts from my published writings in the form of a pamphlet, a few copies of which I herewith send you, and beg to request you will lay them also before the meeting.

"I feel confident that I have adduced sufficient evidence to show that the recognition and practice of homœopathy in its cardinal doctrines, as one of the methods of treatment, date as far back as the days of Hippocrates, and that some at least of the great men of the profession, whom the profession could never brand as homœopaths, have avowed their faith in it to that extent. I have been guilty of no other sin. Without retracting an iota of my faith in the system, as expressed by me in unmistakable language, times without number, I would still repudiate the exclusive and sectarian name of homœopath applied to me. I claim the title of physician, and I claim the right thereunto appertaining, namely, liberty of reason to search after truth, and liberty of conscience to acknowledge truth whenever and wherever found. In my hard struggles as a physician, as a practitioner of the most difficult art on earth, I have only endeavoured to exercise that right. If the Medical Faculty should declare that I have thereby forfeited their confidence, I should respectfully beg to relieve the Senate of further responsibility in the matter, and ask them to remove my name at once from the Faculty. My last request is that this letter appear in the proceedings of this day's meeting."

The Hon'ble Louis S. Jackson enquired whether the question now before the Senate had been considered and decided on by the Syndicate in accordance with paragraph 14 of the Bye-laws relating to the Syndicate.

The Vice-Chancellor replied that the question had not been decided on, but that the Hon'ble Louis S. Jackson would be at liberty to take the objection when a resolution was put to the Senate.

Dr. Partridge then proposed—

That in accordance with the wish of the Faculty of Medicine, Dr. Mahendralal Sircar's name be transferred by the Syndicate from the Medical to some other Faculty.

Dr. Anderson seconded the motion.

The Hon'ble Romeshchunder Mitter then proposed the following amendment:—

That the Senate should defer the re-consideration of their appointment of Dr. Mahendralal Sircar to the Faculty of Medicine, and should request the Faculty of Medicine to re-consider the resolution come to at their last meeting with special reference to Dr. Mahendralal Sircar's letter now read.

The Hon'ble the Chief Justice seconded the amendment.

Dr. Partridge then withdrew his motion.

The amendment was then put as a substantive motion and carried unanimously.

24. Dr. Partridge proposed—

That the following reply be submitted to the Syndicate with reference to the question referred to the Faculty by the Senate at their meeting on the 13th July :—

The members of the Faculty of Medicine have, in accordance with the request of the Senate, carefully considered the letter addressed to the Registrar of the University by Dr. Mahendralal Sircar. They are exceedingly sorry that a perusal of this document does not enable them to modify the resolution they recorded at the meeting of the Faculty held on the 15th May, and they feel themselves compelled still to affirm, “that they are unable to associate themselves, as a Faculty of Medicine, with a member who professes and practises homœopathy.”

From the whole tenor of Dr. Mahendralal Sircar's letter, however, it is manifest that he entirely misapprehends the motives which have influenced the Faculty in their decision ; and this misapprehension the members of the Faculty are anxious to correct. The Faculty do not, in the very faintest degree, desire to impose restrictions upon the most perfect freedom of opinion and practice in medical science, nor do they pretend “to condemn a professional brother” for entertaining views divergent from their own ; they simply maintain that homœopathy is based upon principles and methods of enquiry which are diametrically opposed to what they believe to be the true principles and methods of sound, logical, inductive reasoning, and careful, thorough-going research, and entertaining such a belief, they necessarily feel that there can be no common meeting ground of thought or opinion between themselves and individuals who profess and practise homœopathy ; all practical discussion and consultation in concert, with reference to medical questions, would therefore manifestly be impossible, and to pretend to deliberate together, as professional advisers of the Syndicate and Senate in matters medical, would be to invite endless discussion of an unprofitable nature and to render the deliberations of the Faculty abortive. A certain degree of consensus of opinion, as to first principles, is essential in a body of men who are placed in the position of advisers of the University on special questions, and without it their discussions would be unprofitable, their advice worthless; such consensus of opinion would not exist between the present members of the Faculty and Dr. Mahendralal Sircar.

Taking an earnest interest in the success and prestige of the Calcutta University, and especially in the welfare of its medical graduates, the Faculty cannot consent to be partakers in the introduction of a change which would imperil that success and deteriorate the value of the University medical degrees. At present these degrees are recognized by the Universities and Medical Corporations at home, and, under the Medical Act now before Parliament, they are included amongst the Colonial degrees, to which it is proposed that the privilege of registration should be extended; the change contemplated by the Senate would effectually nullify this recognition and prevent the bestowal of the proposed privilege to the very serious loss of all present and future medical graduates, and, as the Faculty believe, to the manifest discredit of the University in public estimation.

Dr. Cayley seconded the motion.

The motion was carried unanimously.

48. Read the following letter addressed to the Registrar by Dr. Mahendralal Sircar:—

“I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of a copy of the proceedings of the Faculty of Medicine at their meeting on the 23rd July, with special reference to the last paragraph of my letter addressed to you on the 13th July, and read at the meeting of the Senate on that date, which you have forwarded by direction of the Vice-Chancellor and Syndicate. I have to offer the following remarks on these proceedings, and the vital importance of the principles involved in the discussion compels me to request, which I do most respectfully, that the Hon'ble the Vice-Chancellor and the Syndicate will lay this letter before the Senate at their next meeting, or at any special meeting that may be called for the purpose.”

“From the proceedings of the Faculty of Medicine, I find that the following resolution, proposed by Dr. Partridge and seconded by Dr. Gayley, was carried unanimously :—

‘The members of the Faculty of Medicine have, in accordance with the request of the Senate, carefully considered the letter addressed to the Registrar of the University by Dr. Mahendralal Sircar. They are exceedingly sorry that a perusal of this document does not enable them to modify the resolution they recorded at the meeting of the Faculty held on the 15th May, and they feel themselves compelled still to affirm “that they are unable to associate themselves, as a Faculty of Medicine, with a member who professes and practises homœopathy.”

‘From the whole tenor of Dr. Mahendralal Sircar’s letter, however, it is manifest that he entirely misapprehends the motives which have influenced the Faculty in their decision, and this misapprehension the members of the Faculty are anxious to correct. The Faculty do not, in the very faintest degree, desire to impose restriction upon the most perfect freedom of opinion and practice in Medical Science, nor do they pretend “to condemn a professional brother” for entertaining views divergent from their own; they simply maintain that homœopathy is based upon principles and methods of enquiry which are diametrically opposed to what they believe to be the true principles and methods of sound, logical, inductive reasoning, and careful and thorough-going research, and, entertaining such a belief, they necessarily feel that there can be no common meeting-ground of thought or opinion between themselves and individuals who profess and practise homœopathy; all practical discussion and consultation in concert with reference to medical questions would, therefore, manifestly be impossible, and to pretend to deliberate together, as professional advisers of the Syndicate and Senate in matters medical, would be to invite endless discussion of an unprofitable nature and to render the deliberations of the Faculty abortive. A certain degree of consensus of opinion, as to first principles, is essential in a body of men who are placed in the position of advisers of the University on special questions, and without it their discussions would be unprofitable, their advice worthless; such consensus of opinion would not exist between the present members of the Faculty and Dr. Mahendralal Sircar.

‘Taking an earnest interest in the success and prestige of the Calcutta University, and especially in the welfare of its medical graduates, the Faculty cannot consent to be partakers in the introduction of a change which would imperil that success and deteriorate the value of the University Medical degrees. At present these degrees are recognized by the Universities and Medical Corporations at Home, and, under the Medical Act now before Parliament, they are included amongst the Colonial degrees, to which it is proposed that the privilege of registration should be extended; the change contemplated by the Senate would effectually nullify this recognition and prevent the bestowal of the proposed privilege to the very serious loss of all present and future Medical graduates, and, as the Faculty believe, to the manifest discredit of the University in public estimation.’

“In this resolution the Faculty adhere to their previous resolution of the 15th May. But as they have condescended to give reasons for this adhesion, I am cheered with the thought that my case may not be altogether hopeless. If they had simply adhered to the position they have taken from the beginning of this unfortunate affair, without advancing any reasons for doing so, my case was foreclosed by what I had myself said in the last paragraph of my letter of the 13th July. But as they have not only given reasons, but reasons different from what I had expected, the Senate are bound to consider those reasons by the light of the reasons that I may advance in my behalf. The Senate have, of course, absolute control and authority over their own decisions, and they may, if they like, disappoint me after having appointed me of their own free will to one of their Faculties. But I beg leave to submit that such treatment of a colleague, without ample and cogent reasons to justify it, would not be fair, at least, would not be consistent, and certainly would not command that respect from the public, which all acts of an august educational body like the Senate ought to do.

“In declaring that ‘the Faculty do not, in the very faintest degree, desire to impose restriction upon the most perfect freedom of opinion and practice in Medical Science, nor do they pretend ‘to condemn a professional brother’ for entertaining views divergent from their own,’ the Faculty have, I am glad to see, taken their stand upon reason, and not upon dogmatism, and I may therefore presume that they have thereby very nobly laid themselves open to reason and conviction.”

“The Faculty say that ‘they simply maintain that homœopathy is based upon principles and methods of inquiry which are diametrically opposed to what they believe to be the true principles and methods of sound, logical, inductive reasoning, and careful and thorough-going research.’ If the opposite could be shewn by the light of fact and reasoning—if it could be shewn that homœopathy has been based upon careful and thorough-going research, with the aid of the rigid canons of logic, inductive and deductive,—if all this could be shewn, then the Faculty in consistency ought to admit the untenableness of their inference that ‘there can be no common meeting-ground of thought and opinion between themselves and individuals who profess and practise homœopathy.’

“Before proceeding to the demonstration, however, I may beg leave most respectfully to ask the Faculty if they have arrived at their opinion about homœopathy after a careful and thorough-going research, or if they have based this opinion upon the opinions or ipse dixit of others. I am led to put this question, because I was one of those who used to denounce homœopathy even more strongly than the Faculty have done, when I had only second-hand knowledge of it, and when I had absolutely no experience of it. I do not say that the honorable and learned members of our Faculty of Medicine are so unfair and unscientific as I was when only a raw and conceited youth from college. I should be very glad, and the Senate no doubt expect, to be assured that the Faculty of Medicine have not, without a thorough and careful examination, passed a condemnatory judgment upon a system of therapeutics which has its origin in the profession, which pretends to be the only system based upon inductive reasoning, and which has been advocated by members of the profession whose honesty, and whose capacity to judge in these matters, it would be almost madness to question.

“ If it be that the learned members of the Faculty of Medicine have formed their opinion of homœopathy from authority, and not from careful thorough-going research, which I need not say implies actual trials, then I would take the liberty to tell them, in the language of one greater than all of us, ‘ I have studied the subject, you have not;’ and then it ought to be a matter for the most serious consideration of the Senate—whether they are to be guided by an opinion formed, à priori, on the authority of others, and without a due examination of the subject, or by an opinion formed after careful searching and repeated actual trials.

“ I am fully aware that discussion in a technical subject like medicine can only be profitably carried on between men conversant with the subject in all its details. It was for this reason that I attempted to remove the discussion from the Senate to its proper arena, the Faculty. But the Faculty have, by the very fact of refusing all discussion with me, and of having submitted to the Syndicate and the Senate the reasons of the faith that is in them, preferred to be judged by lay opinion, and I must not shrink from accepting the same position. I shall try to divest the subject of as much technicality as I can. And I believe, indeed, that the subject may be put in such a light that there will be no difficulty with the members of the Senate to arrive at a correct conclusion in the matter by the light of ‘ the principles and methods of sound, inductive reasoning,’ with which all members of the Senate, other than members of the Faculty of Medicine, are, I am confident, as much familiar and conversant as the members of the said Faculty themselves.

“ The cardinal doctrines of homœopathy are three in number :

(1.) Remedial agents should be proved in health, before they are used as such in disease. In other words, before using any agent, other than food, in disease, they should be administered in healthy individuals, in order to elicit their physiological and health-disturbing actions.

(2.) When drugs have been so proved, they are most efficaciously used in diseased conditions similar to those they have been found to produce ; the greater the similarity, the greater being their efficacy in removing those diseased conditions.

(3.) When so used, their doses must be less than those which produce the similar artificial or drug-disease.

“ It is not a little remarkable that the germs of all these doctrines are traceable to pre-Hahnemannic times and authors. I have shewn in my first letter that the second and third of these doctrines are found in the writings of Hippocrates, and that the first was insisted upon, though not carried into effect, by Haller, who, in the preface to his Swiss Pharmacopœia, published in 1771, has these memorable words:—‘In the first place the remedy is to be tried in the healthy body, without any foreign substance mixed with it; a small dose is to be taken, and attention is to be directed to every effect produced by it: for example, on the pulse, the temperature, the respiration, the secretions. Having obtained these obvious phenomena in health, you may then pass on to experiment on the body in a state of disease.’

“This necessity of proving drugs was not only recognized but acted upon, before Hahnemann, by Baron Stoerck of Vienna, who instituted experiments upon himself with several powerful drugs, such as aconite, colchicum, conium, stramonium; and also, contemporaneously with Hahnemann, by Prof. Joerg of Leipsic, who ‘gathered around him a band of enthusiastic and devoted disciples; aided by whom, he instituted provings, with a number of our most important therapeutic agents, with a view of determining their opposites.’

“Since Hahnemann the necessity of proving drugs has been recognized by the most advanced thinkers in the profession, men who cannot be suspected of having any leaning towards Hahnemann and his system. Thus the third (Medical) section of the Scientific Congress held at Strasbourg, under the presidency of Prof. Forget in 1842, passed the following resolution:—‘That the third section are unanimously of opinion that experiments with medicines on healthy individuals are, in the present state of medical science, of urgent necessity for physiology and therapeutics; and that it is desirable that all known facts should be methodically and scrupulously collected, and, with prudence, cautiousness, and scientific exactness, arranged, written out, and published.’

“Dr. Acland, at the thirty-fifth meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, addressing from the chair of the Physiological Sub-section, said: ‘Physiological experiment is necessary to obtain the laws of action on healthy bodies, but alone it does not explain the laws of action on perverted organic structures or functions, as is seen in the common instance of the different effects of opium on a man in health, and on a man in disease. Clinical observation is, of course, beyond physiological research, and must, from its far more limited field, follow rather than precede. It aims at applying, in due course, all safe and established results of previous physiological inquiry, and adds the deductions exclusively its own.’

“So much with reference to the first doctrine of homœopathy, on which it must be admitted, from what has been advanced, that there is a singular consensus of opinion amongst the thinking portion of the profession.

“ In developing the second and third doctrines, Hahnemann only carried out the suggestion of Hippocrates ; and this he did on the strict basis of Induction. Convinced of the uncertainty of medicine as practised in his time after the rule of contraries of Galen, and often at haphazard, and with no rule whatever, he forsook the profession, till an accident impelled him to try a track untrodden indeed, but which he thought worth exploring in the interests of suffering humanity. Hippocrates has said, ‘ diseases are sometimes cured by similars’, and has given an instance in the utility of mandrake in mania. In translating Cullen’s Materia Medica, he found mention made of cinchona bark producing symptoms like those of ague, and he knew that the bark was pre-eminently curative of ague. This was certainly confirmatory of Hippocrates’ dictum. But a couple of instances are not sufficient either to establish or disprove the pretended law. If it, indeed, was a law of nature, it must be capable of verification. But the process of verification was not an easy matter. It entailed experiments not on inanimate matter, but on living man, which meant no ordinary amount of suffering. The work was difficult and arduous, but he set about it with an energy, devotion, and self-sacrifice, unknown before or since.

“ Familiar with almost all the languages in which the records of medicine are kept, and having access to good libraries, he examined reported cures with reference to the properties of the drugs which brought about the cures, and this examination gave him presumptive evidence that the drugs acted on the law of similars. But he was not to be satisfied with this traditional or historical view of the question. He proved a few potent drugs in his own person, recorded the symptoms developed by them, and then administered them in cases of disease presenting the same array of symptoms. The result was beyond his most sanguine expectations. He published the results of his first trials, and invited his professional brethren to make the trials themselves. A few obeyed his call, made the trial, were convinced, and became his ardent followers. The majority, however, refused to accept his invitation and opposed and ridiculed him as a visionary. But nothing daunted or discouraged he went on, and, with the aid of the few, proved drug after drug in the crucible of the healthy human organism, faithfully noting and recording their symptoms. When opportunities presented, he tried these drugs in fresh cases of disease with similar symptoms, and was more and more convinced of the truth of the law of similars. With reference to dose, he first used the ordinary ones, but was soon convinced of the wisdom of the Hippocratic rule, that the dose should be less than what was capable of producing the diseased condition. He very cautiously began to reduce the dose, till he found that he could reduce it to such a minimum as to appear almost infinitesimally small compared with the ordinary doses.

“This is the character of the research, both historical and experimental, with which Hahnemann proceeded to establish the law of similars, and the necessity of much smaller doses than ordinary of medicines that are to be administered after this law. If research which, not satisfied with ransacking the records of the past, took the shape of voluntary poisoning with potent drugs with a view to discovering their pure actions, and which proceeded slowly and patiently to examine case after case under drugs thus proved, —if research such as this was not careful and thorough-going, and was not based upon induction, it has yet to be shewn what research ever was in medicine or any other science.

“No better proof can be given of the sound, inductive basis of these researches than the precious, practical, deductive fruits which they have borne. To mention a few out of a host of remedial agents which homœopathy has brought to light, I may cite the instance of aconite in acute inflammations, of belladonna in cerebral congestions and erysipelas and scarlet fever, of camphor in cholera, of arsenic in gastritis and the vomiting and collapse of cholera, of cantharidis in inflammations of the urinary organs and in the suppression of urine of cholera, of ipecacuanha in the distressing nausea and vomiting of pregnancy, of chamomilla in the irritability and diarrhoea of dentition, of mercury in mumps and tonsillitis, of hepar sulphuris (sulphide of calcium) in suppurations, of nux vomica in dyspepsia and habitual constipation, &c., &c. Are not the virtues of these drugs eloquently extolled in modern orthodox manuals as infallible, charming, miraculous, without any acknowledgment of the source whence they have been derived? I challenge any one to trace the paternity of their discovery to any other than the researches of Hahnemann and his followers. Even orthodox journals admit that certain portions of some of these manuals ‘are distinctly homœopathic in the nature of the information supplied, in the sources of that information, in the modes of employing the drugs recommended—in short, in every way save the mode of prescription as regards dose.’ Have we not recently had the spectacle of a renegade homœopath attempting to palm off the remedies of homœopathy as discoveries of his own, and was not his work reviewed in nearly all the orthodox journals as a remarkable production, having been literally ‘saluted with a chorus of praise,’ till he was detected by, I believe, a writer in the British and Foreign Medico Chirurgical Review?

“ When such is the case ; when the reform inaugurated by Hahnemann was the first effectually to open the eyes of the profession to the vis medicatrix naturæ, to the mischief of giving powerful drugs at random and in heroic doses, and of the reckless use of such dangerous agents as the leech, the lancet, the cautery, &c., and to the necessity of conserving the powers of the organism ; when the very treasures of homœopathy are being freely appropriated in doses remote indeed from Hahnemann’s infinitesimals yet equally remote from the ordinary ones ; when professors in orthodox institutions, like Dr. Sydney Ringer, whose manuals are text-books in our medical schools, approvingly quote the opinions of avowed homœopaths, like Mr. Blackley, Mr. Richard Hughes and Dr. Bayes, is it not doing violence to fact and injustice to Hahnemann and men who believe there is truth in his system, to maintain that the methods and principles of homœopathy are diametrically opposed to the methods and principles of sound, logical, inductive reasoning ?—so diametrically opposed, indeed, that the exclusion of these men from all fellowship is the sine quâ non of progress in legitimate, rational medicine !

“ It is not intended to maintain that Hahnemann did not commit any mistakes ; that all that he taught was absolute truth. On the contrary, I maintain now, as I have done ever since I saw truth in his system, that he fell into grave error when he said that the law of similars was not merely the best, but the only law of healing by drugs, and that his minimum dose was the only appropriate dose. This perhaps he did in the enthusiasm of a discoverer, for in proportion as he advanced in the new line he saw the great difference between it and the old, and no wonder, when we consider the state of medicine in his time, disfigured as it was by polypharmacy, and by the most reckless and almost barbarous use of the lancet, the leech, the cautery, &c, no wonder that he should have considered old medicine as not only vain and worthless but as directly mischievous, and no wonder that he should have thought it his duty to point this out to the profession. Had he done so with moderation, in language showing respect to the feelings and prejudices of his professional brethren, perhaps he would not have met with the opposition that he did, and perhaps he would have had the satisfaction of seeing his system recognised by the whole profession as certainly one of the rational methods, if not the only method, of treatment. But unfortunately for medicine, Hahnemann had not, with the sagacity of genius, the sobriety and modesty of a philosopher, and his example will stand as a lesson and a warning to future discoverers as to how they promulgate their discoveries. Great is truth, indeed, and will prevail ; but we must not forget that truth has to be presented to mortal men, with passions, and prejudices, and weaknesses inherent in their very organization ; and we must not forget also that no one has the monopoly of all truth.

“ But are we to be deterred from accepting whatever of truth there is in his teachings, simply because it is mixed up with much of error, and conveyed in language which we cannot approve of ? To consistently pursue such a course in every matter, would be to persistently shut nearly all the avenues of knowledge ; and if one were to do it, he would be charged with the height of folly. What then would be said of the person who not only refuses to be enlightened himself on a particular subject, but would refuse all fellowship with one who would not like to remain in the dark ? And such has been the policy of the profession towards homœopathy and those who believe in it, notwithstanding that very great men, competent to think, to weigh evidence and judge,—men like Archbishop Whately and Sir William Hamilton,—have strongly protested against ‘ the injustice and the absurdity ’ of the policy.

“ The ‘ injustice and the absurdity ’ are beginning to be felt in the profession of good men and true. In an article, entitled Are there Therapeutical Laws ? in the Practitioner for June, after showing ‘ that one or two of the principles lying at the foundation of this (Hahnemann’s) system are substantially true,’ the writer, Dr. Ross of Manchester, goes on to review ‘ the moral aspects of the present attitude of the profession towards homœopathists ;’ he very justly condemns, as we have ourselves so often done, the intolerant and sectarian character of the followers of Hahnemann, but with equal justice adds, ‘ and now having replied to the homœopathists, and having shewn that they have no right to complain of our conduct until they rectify their own position,’ we, as a great and learned profession, are left face to face with the “ eternal verities.” Does public opinion acquit us of all intolerance towards homœopathists ? What will be the verdict of the historian of the future of the conduct of the profession as a whole in this controversy ? And above all, do our own consciences absolve us of violating the laws of liberty ? These are questions which we ought to face fairly and to answer dispassionately. * * * We ought to show the world that we are a great and enlightened profession, and that we do not stoop to the paltry and immoral expedients of a trades’ union in order to maintain our dignity and our emoluments.

“ The Faculty have objected, on other grounds than purely scientific, to associate with one who professes and practises homœopathy. By this association, they say, the value of the medical degrees of the University would be deteriorated, and consequently the success of the University would be imperilled, and its prestige lowered in public estimation. And the result would be, that whereas now the medical degrees 'are recognised by the Universities and Medical Corporations at Home, and under the Medical Act now before Parliament they are included among the Colonial degrees to which it is proposed that the privilege of registration should be extended,' they will cease to be so recognized, and will be deprived of the proposed privilege. The Faculty take an earnest interest in the success and prestige of the University, and therefore cannot consent to be partakers in the introduction of the change contemplated by the Senate by forcing upon them a member whose presence at their meetings would prove so disastrous to the University itself.

"The objection would really be serious, and, unless I am extremely selfish, I cannot possibly have any other alternative than to quit my seat on the Faculty at once, if the basis on which the objection is made be a valid one. The Faculty must be much better informed than I am, and I have no right to question the correctness of their assertions. This much, however, I must say that I must have been grossly ignorant as to the matter of recognition of the medical degrees of the Calcutta University by 'the Universities and Medical Corporations at Home' (United Kingdom). I was under the impression that our medical degrees are as much recognized by these Universities and Corporations as are our other degrees, that is, that they are not recognized. I read in the Indian Medical Gazette for June, edited by one of the eminent members of the Faculty, that 'efforts are being made to obtain for the medical degrees of the University of Calcutta legal recognition in England.' What are 'efforts being made' in the Medical Gazette, are accomplished facts in the recent resolution of the Medical Faculty. If then it be the fact, as the Faculty assert, that our medical degrees are already recognized, and that the membership of the Faculty of one who is not, as misrepresented, 'a primitive homœopath,' but who adopts whatever of truth there is in homœopathy; who does not 'proclaim the universality of the so-called law of similars,' but who has always maintained it, more or less in harmony with Hufeland, Liston, Lauder Brunton, and Ross, as one of the methods of treatment; and who does not advocate the transcendental doctrine of infinitesimals, but who, while believing in the necessity of much smaller doses than ordinary in treatment after the law of similars, holds the question of dose to be still an open one;—if the membership of such an one would 'nullify this recognition,' then I should say, exclude—nay, expel me from the Faculty at once. But before taking this step, ought not the Faculty to assure themselves again, and ought not they also to assure the Senate, of the fact and the possibility involved in the basis of their objection?

"As for the assertion that the prestige of the University will be lowered in the estimation of the public, my belief is that that prestige will suffer more when it is known that the University has, not only in violation of the spirit of the age, but in direct violation of the spirit and letter of its charter, pledged itself to a medical creed, in obedience to the arbitrary and unreasonable demands of its Faculty of Medicine,—a Faculty which, while professing ‘not in the faintest degree to impose restriction upon the most perfect freedom of opinion and practice in medical science,’ do, by their very act of refusing to associate with a professional brother ‘for holding views (in only one subject) divergent from their own,’ show the greatest intolerance themselves, and virtually forbid all their graduates, present and future, to move out of the groove which has been cut out for them by their professors and their despotic Faculty. For, after this action of the Faculty, how few there will be among students, graduates, and even among the teachers who will think for themselves, how fewer still who will deem it worth their while to think for themselves? and will there be any who will have the courage to avow their honest convictions? Are the learned members of the Faculty aware that this has been the disastrous, demoralizing influence of the ‘absurd and unjust’ policy of the profession towards homœopathy upon the younger members? And would not this influence be intensified, if the Faculty refuse to retrace the step they have taken?

“It might strike as singular that I should be so far forgetful of the character of a gentleman as to so obstinately insist upon my place on a Faculty who are now unanimous in refusing to associate with me, especially after what I said in the last paragraph of my first letter. The reasons might be gathered from what I have said in the first letter, and from what I have said in this. If they are not obvious, I will make them so by stating them briefly:

“First.—I indeed asked the Senate to remove my name at once from the Faculty of Medicine, if the Faculty should declare that I have forfeited their confidence by virtue of my having exercised my right as physician—a right which, I maintained, involved liberty of reason and of conscience to search and to avow truth. The Faculty have not said so, and it is for the Senate to judge whether they ought, under such circumstances, to remove my name.

“Second.—The question is not a mere personal matter. If it had been so—if the Faculty had made it so, which very properly they have not done, nothing would have given me greater pleasure than to relieve my brethren of the Faculty of the pain from a thorn in their side.

“Third.—I submit the question is much broader than a mere personal one. It affects not my place alone on the Faculty, it affects the place of all present and future members of the Senate and of the Faculties. It affects freedom of thought and inquiry not only in medicine, but in all the subjects which come within the curricula of the University. And thus it affects not only the character of the Faculty, but it affects the character of the University itself.

"It is for these grave reasons that I have been compelled to address the Senate again, and at so much length. And it is for these reasons that I am anxious that my learned and honorable colleagues pay due attention to what I have advanced in this letter. It would take no ordinary amount of patience on the part of the Senate to dispose of this unpleasant and unfortunate matter, in a way so as to maintain the character and dignity of the University as a whole, and to protect the character and dignity of its individual members,—in a way, in fact, so as to preserve the University from substantial injury. I can assure the Senate that nothing will be more painful to me than to be the cause, or even thought to be the cause, of any such possible injury. And I can assure them that I shall loyally abide by any decision they may think proper to come to on the subject."

ORDERED—

That the letter be referred to the Senate for consideration.

53. Read the following letter from Mr. Ameer Ali, Secretary to the National Mahomedan Association :

THE NATIONAL MAHOMEDAN ASSOCIATION OFFICE,
Calcutta, the 20th August 1878.

To

THE REGISTRAR OF THE CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY.

SIR,

I am directed to bring to your notice that the Ead-ul-uzha festival, one of the most sacred holidays of the Mahomedan faith, falls on the 5th of December next. The fourth day of the First Arts and Entrance Examinations also happens to fall on the same day. The National Mahomedan Association notes this circumstance with much regret, as it will entail great hardship upon Mussulman examinees, and would be regarded as a serious grievance by the Mahomedan community. The Association has no doubt that this coincidence is the result of some oversight, and ventures to hope that when the matter will be brought to the notice of the Syndicate, the dates will be altered.

I have the honor to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient Servant,

AMEER ALI,

Secretary.

Read also a letter to the same effect from Maulvi Abdool Luteef, Khan Bahadoor, Secretary to the Mahomedan Literary Society of Calcutta, dated the 29th August 1878.

ORDERED—

That the Entrance and First Arts Examinations be postponed for one week, and that Mr. Ameer Ali and Maulvi Abdool Luteef, Khan Bahadoor, be informed accordingly.

54. Read a letter from the Secretary and Treasurer to the Bank of Bengal, dated the 15th August 1878, enclosing a copy of the Government notification of the 12th instant, regarding the $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. loan, and enquiring what course the Syndicate wish to adopt with regard to the $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. securities held by the University of Calcutta.

ORDERED—

That the Registrar inform the Secretary and Treasurer of the Bank of Bengal that the University authorities are willing to surrender their $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. securities, and exchange them for Notes bearing interest at $1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per annum.

ORDERED—

That the following answer be sent to each of these gentlemen :—

"SIR,—I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter dated the 2nd of September 1878 and in reply to state that the Syndicate find from the Bye Laws that they have no power to accept the resignation by any member of the Senate of the Faculty to which he belongs. Should you have any further communication to make, I am to inform you that the Syndicate will meet on Saturday next to consider the question".

ORDERED—

That the Registrar inform the Warden of St. Thomas' College, Colombo, that the Syndicate regret that they cannot comply with his request.

THE HON'BLE ROMESHCHANDRA MITRA.

MR. A. M. BOSE.

65. Read a letter from Mr. Roper Lethbridge, C.I.E., asking that the History of India, compiled under his direction, may be retained as a text-book for the Entrance Examination.

ORDERED—

That the following gentlemen be requested to form a Committee for the purpose of advising the Syndicate on the question of selecting a text-book in English History for the Entrance Examination :—

Mr. A. Garrett.

Rev. J. Robertson.

Mr. A. E. Gough.

66. Read a letter from Mr. Roper Lethbridge, C.I.E., asking that if the University returns to the system of appointing a text-book in English for the Entrance Examination, his Entrance Selections may be adopted for the first two or three years.

ORDERED—

That the Committee appointed for the purpose of re-considering a text-book in English History for the Entrance Examination be requested to recommend text-books in English literature also.

67. Read a letter from the Very Rev. E. Lafont, S. J., Rector of St. Xavier's College, and F. Biden, Esq., M. A., Principal of LaMartinière College, requesting the Syndicate to invite and give due weight to expressions of opinion on the part of heads of affiliated institutions as to the merits—

- (1) of the various text-books now in use ;
- (2) of books which may at any future time be proposed as text-books before sanctioning their adoption.

ORDERED—

That as the question of revising the University Courses is now before the Faculty of Arts, they be invited to take into consideration the desirability of appointing a permanent Sub-Committee to revise from time to time the list of the University text-books, and that the Rector of St. Xavier's College and the Principal of LaMartinière College be informed accordingly.

68. Read a letter from the Secretary and Treasurer, Bank of Bengal, stating that the $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. Securities for Rs. 3,000 belonging to the Duff Memorial Fund have been transferred to the $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. Loan of 1879.

To be recorded.

69. Read a letter from Mr. K. Deighton, declining to superintend the Examination at Agra of the B. A. candidates from colleges other than his own, unless the University sees fit to guarantee him the sum of Rs. 300 for each occasion.

Read also a letter from C. Robertson, Esq., Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, asking how the fee of Rs. 100 came to be allowed to Mr. Deighton for superintending the Examination at Agra out of University funds when it had been arranged that he should receive Rs. 50 from each of the four Governments from which candidates came to be examined, and stating that His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh is of opinion that if the present arrangement is continued, the whole fee should come from the same source instead of falling, as in part it does, on the revenues of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh; and further, that if this be not approved, His Honor would be inclined to discontinue the examination at Agra.

ORDERED—

- (1) That Mr. Deighton be informed that the Syndicate will guarantee him the sum of Rs. 300 for this occasion, and that a further communication will be made to him of the subject.
- (2) That a copy of Mr. Robertson's letter be sent to the Panjab Government, asking them whether they would prefer to continue the present arrangement or to let the intending candidates come to Calcutta.

- (3) That the Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces, be informed that a remuneration of Rs. 100 to Mr. Deighton was passed by the Syndicate in their contingent bill on the 26th of January 1873, and that it therefore appears probable that it was all along intended that he should receive this remuneration in addition to the sums contributed by the provinces from which candidates present themselves for examination; and that before coming to a conclusion on the question of abolishing Agra as a centre for the B. A. Examination, the Syndicate wish to communicate on the subject with the Government of the Panjab.

70. Read a letter from Mr. F. Pincott, recommending the introduction of his edition of Sakuntalā in Hindi, addressed to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal and forwarded by the Director of Public Instruction for consideration.

ORDERED—

That Mr. Pincott be informed that Hindi is only read by candidates for the Entrance Examination, and that the work would be too costly for that class of students.

71. Read a letter from Messrs. Trübner & Co., recommending the introduction of Professor Weber's History of Indian literature.

ORDERED—

That Messrs. Trübner & Co. be informed that the University is engaged in revising the courses of study, and that the question of adopting the work as a text-book for the more advanced students will be taken into consideration.

72. Read a letter from the Inspector of Schools, Western Circle, forwarded by the Director of Public Instruction for Bengal, suggesting that the signatures of Joint and Assistant Inspectors may be accepted in the certificates presented by private candidates for the Entrance and other Examinations of the University.

ORDERED—

That the Director of Public Instruction, Bengal, be informed that the Syndicate do not think it desirable to recommend the Senate to make this alteration in the form of certificate.

73. Read a letter from the Head Master, Ray Bareilly School, enquiring whether four students who have been admitted from that school as candidates for the Entrance Examination, and have subsequently severed their connexion with it, forfeit their right of appearing at the Examination.

ORDERED—

- (1) That the four students be admitted, and that the Inspector-General of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh be requested to communicate the names of the expelled students, and the cause of their expulsion.
- (2) That the Head Master of the Ray Bareilly School be asked how he came to sign the Entrance certificates of the three students with regard to whom he states in his letter that he has every reason to fear that they will fail.

74. Mr. Lydekker was appointed an Examiner in Zoology.

75. Mr. P. O'Kinealy and Dr. Gurudas Bandyopadhyay were appointed Examiners in Law.

76. The Registrar enquired what portions of the subjects in Chemistry and Botany are to be fixed for the next Medical Examination.

ORDERED—

That the following natural orders be fixed for the Examination of 1879 :—

Malvaceæ.	Acanthaceæ.
Anacardiaceæ.	Euphorbiaceæ.
Leguminosæ.	Gramineæ.
Compositæ.	Palmeæ.

77. Read a letter from Mr. G. Bellett, Officiating Inspector of Schools, Rajshye Division, stating that the Head Master of the Putia School has sent up three boys who were at the Bauleah Collegiate School until the third week in October, viz., Mohommed Reaz Uddin, Bamandas Majumdar, and Baradagobinda Maitra, and requesting that they be excluded from the ensuing Entrance Examination.

ORDERED—

That the three boys in question be excluded from the Examination, as their certificates are not signed by the Head Master of the School in which the candidates have been or are being educated, as required by the Regulations, and that the Inspector of Schools be informed accordingly.

78. Read a letter from Mr. J. VanSomerén Pope, Officiating Principal, Dacca College, suggesting that a fixed rule of marking in English be laid down for the Entrance Examination, and that the third class in the Entrance Examination be abolished.

ORDERED—

That Mr. Pope be informed that the Syndicate do not think it desirable to adopt his proposals.

79. Read a letter from Dr. D. B. Smith, forwarding an application from Mr. A. V. Lazarus, praying that his degree of B. A. of Oxford may be accepted by the University of Calcutta in lieu of the First Arts Examination test.

RESOLVED—

That the Syndicate recommend to the Senate that for the purpose of the Medical Examinations of the University, the degree of Bachelor of Arts held by Mr. Lazarus may be considered equivalent to the F. A. certificate, and that Dr. Smith be informed accordingly.

80. Read a letter from the Officiating Principal, Sanskrit College, enquiring whether students who paid their fees at any previous F. A. and B. A. Examination and could not present themselves for such Examination may be admitted to the Examination of this year on payment of the prescribed fee, and exhibiting the Registrar's receipt for a former payment.

ORDERED—

That such students may be admitted.

81. Read a letter from the Inspector of Schools, Presidency Circle, stating that some boys sent up from the Jaynógur School were students of the South Baharóó School till the 1st July last.

Read also two petitions from the Secretary, Jaynógur School.

ORDERED—

That the boys in question be admitted, and that the papers connected with the case be sent to the Director of Public Instruction, Bengal, in order that he may decide to which school the candidates should be assigned.

82. The Director of Public Instruction, Bengal, reported that Chandra Bhushan Chand, who was rejected at the test Examination of the Khagra L. M. S. Institution at the end of October last, applied for admission to the Berhampore Collegiate School, was admitted by the Principal of the College, passed the text Examination of that school, and was sent up to the Registrar as a pupil of the Berhampore Collegiate School.

ORDERED—

That Chandra Bhushan Chand be excluded from the ensuing Entrance Examination.

83. Read a letter from Mr. C. H. Tawney, Registrar, Calcutta University, asking for a month's leave, and recommending that Mr. A. M. Nash, Professor in the Presidency College, may be appointed Acting Registrar during his absence.

ORDERED—

That the application for leave may be granted, and that Mr. A. M. Nash be appointed from the 9th December.

85. Read the following letter addressed to the President and Members of the Syndicate of the University of Calcutta, referred to the Faculty of Medicine by a resolution of the Syndicate at their meeting on the 27th of July 1878 :—

To the President and Members of the Syndicate of the University of Calcutta, dated Calcutta, the 22nd July 1878.

“In a letter dated 24th April, we drew the attention of the Syndicate to the currency in Calcutta of a rumour that the recent examinations for medical degrees and licenses had been conducted in a somewhat irregular manner, and, being interested in the good name of the University and particularly in that of the Faculty to which we belong, we ventured to ask you to enquire into the truth of this rumour, and to satisfy yourselves whether or not these examinations had been conducted in accordance with the regulations laid down for the guidance of Examiners in Medicine.

2. The reply which we received was to the effect, that in the opinion of the Syndicate no irregularities had occurred, as no student had been passed without the consent of the Board of Examiners, but that steps would be taken to frame regulations which would remove all uncertainty as to the conduct of these examinations in future. The Syndicate having thus virtually declined to enquire into the truth of the rumour above alluded to, we have taken the trouble of doing so ourselves. But, before proceeding to lay before you some of the results of our enquiry, we think it well to call briefly to mind the mode in which the medical examinations are conducted at this University.

3. The Examiners in Medicine are appointed by the Syndicate, and each determines, according to a standard sanctioned by the Syndicate, the number of marks gained in his subject by each candidate. The standard at present in force is as follows:—
 See minutes of the Syndicate, vol. 20, pages 4, 7, 18, 21.
 The full value marks in the junior L. M. S. and M. B. Examinations are 1,000 each for Anatomy, Physiology and Materia Medica, and 600 each for Chemistry, Botany, and Comparative Anatomy. The passing marks in individual subjects are 500 each in the first three subjects, 240 in Chemistry, and 200 in Botany and Comparative Anatomy. But, in addition to passing marks in individual subjects, each candidate must, in order to qualify, obtain 50 per cent. of the aggregate full marks. In the senior examinations the full marks are 1,000 each for Medicine, Surgery and Midwifery, and 600 each for Pathology, Hygiene, and Medical Jurisprudence; while the passing marks in the former three subjects are 50 per cent., in the latter three 35 per cent., and on the aggregate 50 per cent. After the Examiners have awarded their marks, they are summoned to a Board meeting, at which the fate of candidates for diplomas is finally decided. In his letter of appointment, each of the Examiners at the recent examinations was, we understand, asked to inform the University Registrar, prior to the meeting of the Board of Examiners, of the marks he had awarded to each candidate. The "Board of Examiners," let it be observed, is not synonymous with the Examiners in Medicine, because the President of the Medical Faculty for the time being is ex-officio President of the "Board of Examiners," whether he happens to be himself an Examiner in any subject or not.

4. At the recent examination we find that, with the consent of the majority of the "Board of Examiners," the following alterations (which, for convenience, we give in a tabular form) were made in the marks awarded by the Examiners :—

5. We also find by an examination of the Registrar's book, which, since writing our first letter to you, we have discovered is open to the inspection of all fellows, that, in the case of no less than 27 candidates, the word failed which had originally been written against their names by the Registrar is erased, and the word passed, or the letter P, is substituted. These changes are no doubt the logical sequence of alterations made by the "Board" in the marks of these 27 candidates. Should it not be deemed necessary for the Members of the Syndicate themselves to enter into a minute investigation of the whole of the marks registered at the late examination, it might be advantageous to look at least at a few, and we would suggest, for example, that you enquire what were the marks originally awarded in Chemistry to student No. 88 in the Junior L. M. S. List, and what additional marks were awarded to him by the "Board". We would further invite you to enquire whether it is the case that in the absence, at the earlier meetings of the "Board," not merely of the Examiner in Materia Medica, but in the absence also of his marks in that subject, the fate of candidates was temporarily decided. We would also ask you to ascertain in how many subjects the Registrar received the Examiners' marks prior to the meeting of the "Board." We may observe that, had the marks in all subjects been so submitted, it would have been possible to have found out, by simply looking at the Registrar's books, what the actual procedure of the "Board" was in each candidate's case.

6. If the Registrar's book be examined, it will be found that all through these proceedings of the "Board" the passing standard of the Syndicate is always in a manner scrupulously observed, no candidate being allowed to pass unless he has either reached that standard by his own merits, or has been marked up to it by the "Board." The examination papers are, moreover, published in the University Calendar, and the educational bodies in Europe with which this University, desires to be associated and the outside world in general, are thus led to believe that the medical degrees and licenses of the Calcutta University are obtained after an examination conducted on ordinary principles.

7. Our object in again drawing attention to the mode of conducting the examinations in Medicine is not to ask you to take action having retrospective effect, but we desire to express a strong opinion that it is in the highest degree undesirable that the present state of things should be allowed to go on, for the degree of every University should, we consider, be above suspicion. If the passing of candidates is to lie with a "Board" the members of which are at liberty to change the awards of individual Examiners as they like, we fail to see the advantage of appointing paid Examiners. Each professor might just as well be asked to submit a list of the students to whom he thinks licenses or degrees should be given, and the fees of special Examiners might thus be saved. Our opinion, however, is that the "Board" should be entirely abolished. Three of us have acted on such "Boards" on various occasions, and we have seen that the "Board" is to a large extent guided by its most exigant member, who insists that certain candidates who have done well in his subject (which he naturally considers, and which may in fact be, one of paramount importance) shall be pulled through somehow, however badly they may have done in another or even in several other subjects. And such men are pulled through by pressing the Examiners in whose subjects they have done badly to mark them up. Against such proceedings we have protested more or less strongly at "Board" meetings, but we have found that under the present system individual protests are of little use, and we feel that no Examiner ought to be exposed to pressure of the kind we have indicated. We are even unable to see the necessity for any meeting of the Examiners themselves after the marks have been awarded, as the question of a candidate's passing or being rejected ought, in our opinion, not to be a matter of canvass and of voting, as it is at present, but ought to be a simple question of arithmetic. The Examiners should, we think, send their marks to the Registrar, who should sum them up and determine what candidates have reached the University standard. With regard to the question of allowing grace marks to men who have failed slightly in one subject, but who have done well in others, we would observe that, if it be desired to continue the practice of granting such marks, some scale might readily be devised which could be as easily applied by the Registrar as by a Board; such a scale is, we understand, now applied in the Arts Examinations. The only real function of the present "Board" is to award grace marks by vote, under no rule, and on a scale varying from 5 to 40 per cent. of the passing standard in individual subjects. And this, with all due deference to the opinion expressed by the Syndicate, we venture to consider an irregularity, and one which it is undesirable to perpetuate.

8. But, although we think there is no use whatever of a meeting of Examiners after the examinations, we are strongly of opinion that Examiners ought to meet prior to the examination, and that each should submit, for discussion by his fellows, the paper which he proposes to give. We think that, were this done, obscure, difficult, and out-of-the-way questions might be prevented from appearing in the papers set for candidates.

9. If, for any reason, it be considered desirable to lower the standard of medical examination, there are constitutional methods of doing this. We do not much object to lowering the standard for diplomas if it be considered expedient to do so. At the same time it is to be borne in mind that, at the present moment, an opposite policy is being followed in the English Colleges and Universities. But what we do object to most emphatically is, that a high standard shall continue to be publicly paraded as that of the University, while candidates are in reality secretly admitted to its degrees and licenses by the vote of a "Board" which guides itself by no fixed rules. If it be necessary or expedient to give a certain number of men licenses in medicine every year without being very particular about their qualifications, we submit that arrangements should be made accordingly. A license, higher in character than that given to the pupils of the Campbell Medical School, might be given to Medical College men who are not good enough for a degree. But we contend that the University should not put such a license almost on a level with its degree of M. B. At present, as you are aware, the only respect in which the examination for M. B. differs from that for L. M. S. is that the former includes the subjects of Comparative Anatomy and Physiology with Zoology, while the latter does not."

We are,

Sirs,

Yours faithfully,

GEORGE KING,
JOHN ANDERSON,
D. D. CUNNINGHAM,
J. R. LEWIS,

Fellows of the University of Calcutta.

It was resolved first to consider whether the result of the Medical Examinations should depend solely upon the total of the marks awarded by the Examiners and summed up by the Registrar, or whether they should be submitted for further revision by the Board of Examiners.

Dr. Payne proposed that the Faculty of Medicine recommend to the Syndicate that for the future the result of the Medical Examinations should depend solely on the total of the marks summed up by the Registrar.

Dr. Partridge seconded the motion.

The motion was carried unanimously.

Dr. Partridge then proposed that the Faculty recommend to the Syndicate that for the future the following words be omitted from the instructions issued to the Examiners in Medicine, viz., "with the condition that, in order to pass either examination, a candidate must obtain not less than 50 per cent. of the marks in the aggregate."

Dr. Payne seconded the motion.

The motion was carried.

A discussion followed on the advisability of altering the minimum number of marks already fixed for each subject, with the view of preventing the standard being lowered by the omission of the above words. It was decided that a full consideration of this point should be put off to an adjourned meeting.

The meeting was then adjourned.

CHARLES H. TAWNEY,
Registrar.

105. Read the following report from the Committee appointed to select text-books in English for the Entrance Examination :—

To

THE REGISTRAR, CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY.

SIR,

“ In compliance with the resolution of the Syndicate, we have now selected the books that appear to us the best suited as text-books in English for the Entrance Examination. As there is a large number of such books of nearly equal merit, we have thought it best to name several, arranging them in the order in which, all things considered, we would recommend their adoption.

2. “ We have been determined in our choice by these general considerations amongst many others : firstly, that in point of style, Narrative and Description would best answer the purposes of the Entrance Examination Course ; secondly, that in point of subject-matter, the text-book should, as far as may be, convey information that will be useful as an introduction to the course of English literature in the colleges ; thirdly, that its price should not exceed Rs. 2 or Rs. 3 ; lastly, that the text-book to be suitable for the schools in the interior, which are, for the most part, very inadequately supplied with libraries, must not necessarily require too wide a reference to other books.

3. “ We recommend then the following books :—

- | | | | |
|----|--|-----|-------------------|
| 1. | ‘ Sir Walter Raleigh, by Louise Creighton, in the Series of Historical Biographies ; edited by Rev. J. Creighton ... | ... | The whole book. |
| 2. | ‘ A Book of Golden Deeds,’ by Miss Yonge. ‘ Golden Treasury Series’ ... | ... | Half of the book |
| 3. | ‘ Scott in the English Men of Letters Series ... | ... | The whole book. |
| 4. | { ‘ The Iliad ;
or,
The Odyssey } Series of ‘ Ancient Classics for English Readers’ ... | ... | The whole book. |
| 5. | ‘ Herodotus,’ in the Series of ‘ Ancient Classics of English Readers’ ... | ... | The whole book. |
| 6. | ‘ Tales from Shakespeare,’ by Charles Lamb ... | ... | The whole book. |
| 7. | ‘ A Book of Worthies,’ by Miss Yonge. ‘ Golden Treasury Series’ ... | ... | Half of the book. |

8. { Mexico

123. The Senate was convened for the purpose of conferring degrees.

The Vice-Chancellor having declared the Convocation opened, the Graduates of the year were admitted to their respective Degrees in the usual manner.

The Vice-Chancellor then addressed the Senate and Graduates as follows :—

I rise, according to custom, for the purpose of saying a few words to my colleagues in the Senate and to the Graduates whom I see assembled before me.

I think that it is impossible to attend at these annual Convocations without being impressed by the success which has followed the establishment of Universities in India. When we remember the misgivings and the predictions of failure with which this measure was received by many persons sincerely interested in the moral and intellectual progress of the natives of this land ; when we contrast the number of successful candidates at the examinations held in recent years with the numbers in the earlier years of the University ; when we observe the influence which these examinations exercise over the secondary and superior education now going on throughout the vast provinces which compose what, for want of a better term, is called “The Presidency of Bengal”—an influence which is annually increasing ;—and when we reflect that very similar results have followed in the two sister Presidencies, we must, I think, acknowledge that the scheme of Indian Universities, which was sketched out in the Education despatch of 1854, and which was brought into operation in the year of the mutiny, was a measure of true and clear-seeing statesmanship—a worthy monument of the Great Company whose administration of this Empire is one of the most remarkable facts in history. I know that it may be said that before this University, or any other Indian University, can be pronounced to be a complete success, much remains to be accomplished ; that the knowledge which is tested by our examinations, is, in many respects, wanting in that thoroughness which ought to characterize it, and that the number of graduates, of whom it can truly be affirmed that they are well educated men—educated in the highest sense of the word—fitted to become good citizens and useful servants of the State, able to realize the defects of their own knowledge, and to fathom the vastness of the learning to which their studies have introduced them, is comparatively small. To this I can only reply that Rome was not built in a day ; that two-and-twenty years is but a brief period in the life of a nation ; that the reforms which have been effected in the Universities of our own land have been the work of centuries, and that there is every ground for hoping that there will be, as time goes on, it may be a slow, but not the less a sure, advance in the quality of the education tested by these examinations. To the defects to which I have alluded, the Senate are by no means insensible, as is shown by the minutes of their proceedings which are published every year. For some time past an important alteration in the rules for the Degree of Bachelor of Arts, having for its object to render the scheme of studies less discursive, to narrow its range, while increasing its depth, has been under consideration, and will, I hope, be sanctioned at no very distant date. And here I may observe, with reference to a remark which was made last year by my learned friend and predecessor in the Vice-Chancellorship of this University, that the Government of India fully recognise the importance of giving an adequate influence in the counsels of this Senate to those who are teachers by profession, and who are engaged in teaching in the colleges affiliated to the University. It will be seen that something has been done in this direction in the appointments which appeared in last Saturday's Gazette.

Turning to the results of the recent examinations, I find that for the Entrance Examination there were 2,617 candidates, of whom 1,099 passed; for the First Arts Examination 923 candidates, of whom 267 passed; for the Bachelor of Arts Examination 323 candidates, of whom 91 passed; for the M. A. Examination 48 candidates, of whom 28 passed; for the B. L. Examination 84 candidates, of whom 47 passed; for the Licence in Civil Engineering 21 candidates, of whom 5 passed; and for the Degree of Bachelor in Civil Engineering 7 candidates, of whom 1 passed. One thing that strikes one in looking at these figures, is the small proportion of successful candidates for the Bachelor of Arts Degree and at the First Examination in Arts. The proportion was small last year also, and this, I am informed, is, in some measure, attributable to the fact that in both these years the total number of candidates includes unsuccessful candidates of former years who were allowed to present themselves for examination on producing certificates showing that they had paid the fee for a previous examination which they had failed to pass, but without any certificate that since the time of their failure they had been continuing their studies in an affiliated college. In future such a certificate will be required, and the effect will doubtless be to reduce the proportion of unsuccessful candidates.

In connection with the examinations of the past year, I must not omit to mention a circumstance which is both interesting and important. I refer to the fact of the Senate having passed rules for the examination of female candidates, under the operation of which one Hindu young lady, educated at the Bethune School, passed the Entrance Examination with great credit. The young lady to whom I refer, Kâdambinî Bosu, obtained very high marks in Bengâli, very tolerable marks in history; and even in the exact sciences—a subject which is not usually considered to be congenial to the female intellect—she acquitted herself very creditably. She only missed being placed in the first division of passed candidates for the Entrance Examination by a single mark. I will not take up your time by dilating on the advantages of female education, or on the difficulties which beset it in this country. Two years ago this subject was dwelt upon by one of the ablest of my predecessors in this office, and very recently it has formed the subject of an eloquent speech from our Chancellor, which I have no doubt most of you who were not present to hear it have read in the newspapers. On this occasion I will only say that the question whether the women of this country are to be educated, is one which can only be settled by the men, and mainly by the educated classes; by those who, having themselves received the advantages of a liberal education, are desirous that the same advantages shall be extended to their wives and daughters. I am told that there is an increasing desire on the part of the young men of Bengal that their wives and daughters should be educated. I sincerely hope that it may be so; for it is a matter in which neither the Government, nor this University, nor any European agency of any description, can do much to help you. It is essentially an object demanding Native thought and Native effort, which, if it is to be realized at all, must be attained by your own exertions, by the gradual conquest of ancient prejudices, and by a change in national customs which the history of the world teaches us it is by no means easy to effect.

In the past year, as in former years, the Senate of this University has lost by death more than one of its members, who were either remarkable for the zeal and ability with which they devoted themselves to the special objects of the University, or who adorned it by their prominence in other spheres of duty. Conspicuous in the first class was the late Mr. Sutcliffe, who for nearly thirty years was a teacher, and for the greater part of that time was the head of the principal college in Bengal. Mr. Sutcliffe was Registrar of the University for about eleven years, and to him are due most of the improvements in our system which took place during that important and critical period in the history of the University. The admirable arrangements which he introduced for the conduct of the examinations are still carefully followed. Mr. Sutcliffe educated three generations of Bengális. His name will long be a household word in many Bengáli families.

Mr. Blochmann's attainments as an Arabic and Persian scholar are well known. His studies in those languages embraced a wide range, but his special study—the subject on which he had probably acquired more knowledge than has hitherto been attained by any other European scholar—was the history of India under the Muhammadan rule. *

Dr. Robson had passed through a somewhat varied career. Coming to India as a Medical Missionary in 1863, he subsequently joined the Educational Department of this Province, and died, at the early age of forty, a victim to the climate and to his zealous exertions in the discharge of his duties.

Dr. Oldham's avocations were such as did not admit of his taking an active part in the immediate business of the University. He had a high reputation as a Geologist, and his name will long be remembered as the Founder, and for many years the able Director, of the Geological Survey of India. His services in this post were highly valued by the Government of India, and were fully recognized by the scientific world.

And now, gentlemen, the mention of these names of former colleagues whose loss the University deplures, leads me to say a few words with reference to the ceremonial which we performed immediately before the opening of this Convocation. I refer to the unveiling of the bust of the late Mr. Henry Woodrow, which has been placed in this Senate House as a memorial of his long and devoted services in the cause of Native education. To me it is a melancholy satisfaction that the duty of presiding at that ceremonial, and of bearing public testimony to the merits of our valued and lamented colleague, should have devolved upon me; for it so happens that Henry Woodrow and I were school-fellows; and, although the greater part of our Indian service was passed in different parts of the Empire, we had for many years a bond of union in the fact that we were both employed upon the great work of promoting the education of the natives of this land—a work which our lamented colleague performed with a zeal and devotion and practical ability that have seldom been surpassed. I well remember meeting Mr. Woodrow on the first occasion of my visiting this city, now nearly four-and-twenty years ago, and renewing the acquaintance of our school-days; and I shall never forget how impressed I then was by the earnestness and the thoroughness with which he had entered upon his new duties. That earnestness and that thoroughness never flagged. They characterized the whole of Mr. Woodrow's useful and active life, up to the closing scene when he was suddenly struck down in the midst of his labours. And there were two other points in his character which we should all of us do well to contemplate, and to which I would invite the attention of you my younger friends—the newly-passed graduates of this University. I refer to the consistent uprightness and truthfulness of his mind, and to the equanimity with which he bore the trials and disappointments of life. Some of those now present are doubtless aware that many years before his death Mr. Woodrow encountered a severe disappointment in being passed over for the chief office in his department—an office for which he was generally considered to possess the strongest claims. Another person was selected, and Mr. Woodrow had to work on in a subordinate post for another fifteen years; but the disappointment, great as it was, in no way impaired his zeal. He laboured on patiently and steadily, destined at length to attain the goal of his ambition, but alas! only to enjoy it for a few short months.

Gentlemen, before I sit down I must ask permission to offer the respectful but cordial thanks of the University to the distinguished American soldier and statesman who is seated on my right, for having honoured this Convocation by his presence. In General Grant we see a conspicuous instance of that devotion to duty, that tenacity of purpose, that quiet but indomitable energy, which characterizes the best men, not only of the Anglo-Saxon, but of every race. Alike to us who have long been engaged in the business of life, and to you who are now about to enter upon it, the career of General Grant furnishes a remarkable example of duties faithfully and efficiently discharged, and of difficulties successfully overcome: and here let me remind you that there is no sphere of duty however limited, no position in life however humble, in which the contemplation of such an example is without its value. In the words of an eminent countryman of our illustrious visitor, in the words of an American poet who still lives to adorn the literature of his country, and who is held in honour wherever the English language is read—

We have not wings, we cannot soar,
But we have feet to scale and climb,
By slow degrees, by more and more,
The cloudy summits of our time.

The heights by great men reached and kept,
Were not attained by sudden flight;
But they, while their companions slept,
Were toiling upward in the night.

Standing on what too long we bore,
With shoulders bent and downcast eyes,
Let us discern, unseen before,
A path to higher destinies.

Nor deem the irrevocable past,
As wholly wasted, wholly vain,
If rising on its wrecks at last,
To something nobler we attain.

Thus toiling on in the performance of the duties of whatever may be your chosen or your appointed walk in life; thus earnestly striving to overcome the difficulties and the temptations which will inevitably beset you; thus undeterred by failure, and thereby stimulated to fresh effort, it is for you, the graduates of this University, to do your best to prove that the education which is certified by her degrees, is a sound education, which not only informs and trains your intellects, but helps to make you industrious and honest and God-fearing men.

The Vice-Chancellor then declared the Convocation closed.

SIR,

“ In continuation of my letter No. 347, dated the 10th March, I have the honour to enclose copy of a letter from the Secretary to the Government of the Panjab, from which it appears that the Hon’ble the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjab is not prepared to compel students from that province to come to Calcutta in order to pass the B. A. Examination, but would prefer to continue the small fee paid to Mr. Deighton for superintending the examination at Agra.

“ Under these circumstances the Syndicate feel that it is incumbent on them to continue, if possible, to hold the B. A. Examination at some centre which will be convenient for students from the Panjab.

“ At the same time they do not feel disposed to charge the University with that portion of Mr. Deighton’s fee hitherto paid by the North-West Provinces and Oudh.

“ They therefore direct me to enquire whether His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-West Provinces and Oudh would prefer to continue the fee hitherto paid to Mr. Deighton, or to abandon the Agra centre, and allow intending candidates to come to Calcutta.

“ Should His Honor decide to abandon the Agra centre, they will endeavour to arrange with the Government of the Panjab for the examination of candidates from that province, and will recommend to the Senate accordingly.”

Report of the Syndicate for the year 1878-79.

The usual examinations have been held during the year in Arts, Law, Medicine, and Engineering, and a tabular statement is appended, shewing the results and affording a comparison with the results of previous years. The total number of candidates who appeared at this year's examinations was 4,180 against 4,184 in the previous year.

The number of candidates registered for the Entrance Examination was 2,617, of whom 1,098 passed, 1,460 failed, and 59 were absent. Of the successful candidates, 157 were placed in the First Division, 607 in the Second, 334 in the Third. Of the 1,460 candidates who failed, 1,055 were rejected in English, 693 in the second languages, 355 in History and Geography, and 909 in Mathematics. The number of candidates was less by 103 than in the previous year. The result of the examination shews a slight decrease in the percentage of passed candidates as compared with 1877. The number passed in 1877 being 43 per cent., whereas in 1878 about 42 per cent. passed.

The following table shews the number of candidates that came up from each province, the number passed, and the percentage of successful candidates for the years 1877 and 1878 :—
